Poſt obitum benefacta manent, æternaque Virtus
Non metuit Stygiis, nec rapiatur Aquis.

I was ſick, and ye viſited me. Matth. xxv.

AMONG all the innumerable Species of Animals which inhabit the Air, Earth and Water, ſo exceedingly different in their Production, their Properties, and the Manner of their Exiſtence, and ſo varied in Form, that even of the ſame Kind, it can ſcarce be ſaid there are two Individuals in all Reſpects alike; it is remarkable, there are none within our Obſervation, diſtinguiſh'd from the reſt by this Particular, that they are by Nature incapable of DISEASES. The old Poets, how extravagant even in their Fictions, durſt never offend ſo far againſt Nature and Probability, as even to feign ſuch a Thing; and therefore, tho' they made their Achilles invulnerable from Head to Foot, and clad him beſides in impenetrable Armour, forg'd by the Immortals, they were obliged to leave one ſoft unguarded Place in his Heel, how ſmall ſoever, for Deſtruction to enter at.--But tho' every Animal that hath Life is liable to Death, Man, of all other Creatures, has the greateſt Number of Diſeaſes to his Share; whether they are the Effects of our Intemperance and Vice, or are given us, that we may have a greater Opportunity of exerciſing towards each other that Virtue, which moſt of all recommends us to the Deity, I mean CHARITY. The great Author of our Faith, whoſe Life ſhould be the conſtant Object of our Imitation, as far as it is not inimitable, always ſhew'd the greateſt Compaſſion and Regard for the SICK; he diſdain'd not to viſit and miniſter Comfort and Health to the meaneſt of the People; and he frequently inculcated the ſame Diſpoſition in his Doctrine and Precepts to his Diſciples. For this one Thing, (in that beautiful Parable of the Traveller wounded by Thieves) the Samaritan (who was eſteemed no better than a Heretick, or an Infidel by the Orthodox of thoſe Times) is preferred to the Prieſt and the Levite; becauſe he did not, like them, paſs by, regardleſs of the Diſtreſs of his Brother Mortal; but when he came to the Place where the half-dead Traveller lay, he had Compaſſion on him, and came to him, and bound up his Wounds, pouring in Oil and Wine, and ſet him on his own Beaſt, and brought him to an Inn, and took Care of him.----Dives, alſo, the rich Man, is repreſented as being excluded from the Happineſs of Heaven, becauſe he fared ſumptuouſly every Day, and had Plenty of all Things, and yet neglected to comfort and aſſiſt his poor Neighbour, who was helpleſs and full of Sores, and might perhaps have been revived and reſtored with ſmall Cares, by the Crumbs that fell from his Table, or, as we ſay, with the Pit looſe Corns.----I was Sick, and ye Viſited me, is one of the Terms of Admiſſion into Bliſs, and the Contrary, a Cauſe of Exclusion: That is, as our Saviour himſelf explains it, Ye have viſited, or ye have not viſited, aſſiſted and comforted thoſe who ſtood in need of it, even tho' they were the leaſt, or meaneſt of Mankind. This Spirit of Charity ſeems eſſential to the true Spirit of Chriſtianity; and ſhould be extended to all in general, whether Deſerving or undeſerving, as far as our Power reaches. Of the ten Lepers who were cleanſed, nine ſeem to have been much more unworthy than the tenth, yet in reſpect to the Cure of their Diſeaſe, they equally ſhared the Goodneſs of God. And the great Phyſician in ſending forth his Diſciples, always gave them a particular Charge, that into whatſoever City they entered, they ſhould heal ALL the Sick, without Diſtinction.

When the good Samaritan left his Patient at the Inn, he gave Money to the Hoſt, and ſaid, TAKE CARE OF HIM, and what thou ſpendeſt more, I will repay thee. We are in this World mutual Hoſts to each other; the Circumſtances and Fortunes of Men and Families are continually changing; in the Courſe of a few Years we have ſeen the Rich become Poor, and the Poor Rich; the Children of the Wealthy languiſhing in Want and Miſery, and thoſe of their Servants lifted into Eſtates, and abounding in the good Things of this Life. Since then, our preſent State, how proſperous ſoever, hath no Stability, but what depends on the good Providence of God, how careful ſhould we be not to harden our Hearts againſt the Diſtreſſes of our Fellow Creatures, leſt He who owns and governs all, ſhould puniſh our Inhumanity, deprive us of a Stewardſhip in which we have ſo unworthily behaved, laugh at our Calamity, and mock when our Fear cometh. Methinks when Objects of Charity, and Opportunities of relieving them, preſent themſelves, we ſhould hear the Voice of this Samaritan, as if it were the Voice of God ſounding in our Ears, TAKE CARE OF THEM, and whatſoever thou ſpendeſt, I will repay thee.

But the Good particular Men may do ſeparately, in relieving the Sick, is ſmall, compared with what they may do collectively, or by a joint Endeavour and Intereſt. Hence the Erecting of Hoſpitals or Infirmaries by Subſcription, for the Reception, Entertainment, and Cure of the Sick Poor, has been found by Experience exceedingly beneficial, as they turn out annually great Numbers of Patients perfectly cured, who might otherwiſe have been loſt to their Families, and to Society. Hence Infirmaries ſpread more and more in Europe, new Ones being continually erected in large Cities and populous Towns, where generally the moſt ſkilful Phyſicians and Surgeons inhabit. And the Subſcribers have had the Satisfaction in a few Years of ſeeing the Good they propoſed to do, become much more extenſive than was at firſt expected; for the Multitude and Variety of Caſes continually treated in thoſe Infirmaries, not only render the Phyſicians and Surgeons who attend them, ſtill more expert and ſkilful, for the Benefit of others, but afford ſuch ſpeedy and effectual Inſtruction to the young Students of both Profeſſions, who come from different and remote Parts of the Country for Improvement, that they return with a more ample Stock of Knowledge in their Art, and become Bleſſings to the Neighbourhoods in which they fix their Reſidence.

It is therefore a great Pleaſure to all the Benevolent and Charitable, who have been acquainted with theſe Things in other Countries, to obſerve, that an Inſtitution of the ſame Kind has met with ſuch Encouragement in Penſilvania, and is in ſuch Forwardneſs, that there is reaſon to expect it may be carried into Execution the enſuing Year. May the Father of Mercies grant it his Bleſſing, and Thouſands of our unhappy Fellow Creatures, yet unborn, will have Cauſe to bleſs him, for putting it into the Hearts of the generous Contributors, and enabling them thus to provide for their Relief.

From the REFLECTOR.

A Sketch of HUMAN LIFE.

THE Life of Man ſeems ſhort in reſpect of Comforts; but long in reſpect of Miſeries. A Child comes crying into the World, as if apprehenſive of the Miſery he is born to. Indeed, we cannot figure to ourſelves a more indigent Creature than a new-born Infant; the Day of whoſe Birth muſt infallibly prove the Day of its Death, without the Help of others: For unleſs properly aſſiſted, with Care and Skill, to ſupport his tender Frame; he would juſt make his Appearance, like an Actor in an Opera, ſing his Dirge, and quit the Stage. With all the Care taken to preſerve the Life of a Child, Death threatens him every Hour; becauſe his Body, on account of its Delicacy, ſeems, like a Bubble, capable of breaking by the leaſt rude Accident. He muſt, therefore, be watched Day and Night, be covered up in Blankets and Wrappers, and delivered over to the Nurſe to be fed, and lulled, and ſung to Sleep. This is the State of a Child, in his tender Years; and makes the firſt Act of the Tragedy, as Shakeſpear deſcribes it.

Soon after the Infant is weaned, and the Nurſe diſmiſſed, the little Creature is put into the Hands of a Tutor, or Schoolmaſter; who endeavours to harden his tender Skin, with the Rod and the Ferula. And now the young Brain muſt be ploughed and harrowed, to prepare it for receiving the Rudiments of Grammar; which, if the Head be not capable of retaining, the Hands and Back muſt ſmart for it. This Diſcipline may indeed be tolerated, provided it is only exerciſed to the Child's Advantage: For as Valetudinarians take diſagreeable Medicines to improve their Conſtitutions; untoward Youngſters may ſubmit to Correction, when they know that every Laſh, and every Knock, is a Token of Love; tho' many a Boy may ſay with the Poet; 'A force de m'aimer tu me rends 'miſerable.' But Maſters uſually diſpenſe Correction according to the innate Acid of their own Tempers; and retaliate upon the Backs of others, thoſe Stripes they received when School-Boys themſelves. The Pupil, after having for ſome Years been thus diſciplined; inſtructed in Things neceſſary and unneceſſary, uſeful and uſeleſs, is at length ſet free: And now he expects to reap the Fruit of his Labour and Suffering! But, the Joy ariſing upon the Expiration of this Slavery, like Lightning, juſt flaſhes and vaniſhes. Immediately after School Diſcipline, and Academical Drudgery, follow Anxiety of Mind, and the Cares of Life; ſo that the next ſucceeding State may poſſibly prove more diſtreſsful than the firſt.

For now, ſeveral Years, and often the Prime of Life, muſt be ſpent in Attendance, and the ſeeking of Patrons or Preferment. And it happens unluckily in this Situation, that what a Man learnt at School proves of little Service to him; becauſe the Way to the Antichambers of the Great, differs from the Road to Parnaſſus. To ſucceed in Life, inſtead of Latin and Greek, a Man ſhould furniſh himſelf with Humility and Patience; and inſtead of courting the Muſes, ingratiate himſelf with Ladies of Quality, or their Women. All learned Ambition, and towering Thoughts, muſt now be abandoned; and no Condeſcenſion be ſpared. Single Addreſs is here more uſeful than all the liberal Sciences; and how to gain the great Man's Favour and Intereſt, is the Study of Studies. A Suitor muſt imitate the Worm; creep in at Levees; bend and buckle, and ſuffer and ſubmit.

When, at laſt, a Competency is ſervilely obtained, freſh Incumbrances ariſe: A Houſe muſt be furniſhed, an Equipage provided; and before the ſucceſsful Man is ſettled, his Taſte and Reliſh, for this kind of Life, may poſſibly be gone. Then enſues a miſerable State of Things! Whilſt a Man is capable of enjoying Pleaſure, he wants the Means; and when he has got the Means, he wants the Appetite; ſo that the preſent Plenty becomes as diſagreeable as the preceding Want: For, to have nothing, and to like nothing, differ but little. And thus, till a Man is paſt the Age for reliſhing Matrimony, he may not be able to provide for a Wife.

Plenty, and a Diſuſe of it, or a general Diſlike of the World, often attend Old Age. And if Age of itſelf, does not compleat the Misfortune, Infirmity and Weakneſs, Diſguſt and Diſſatisfaction, uſually cloſe the Scene. For, "Old-Age is the Harbour of "Calamities." This, in general, is the Courſe of Human Life; at leaſt, it has been the Tenor of mine, and of far the greater Part of my Acquaintance. Many, indeed, go different Ways to the ſame End; but few of all theſe Ways are without Briars and Thorns, Vexations and Torments. For, the Pilgrimage of Man is a State of Suffering, tho' the Sufferings differ in Kind. All the Roads of Life are rough, and narrow, and craggy, and broken; and the common Gulph, in which they all terminate, is Death. And, thus, as Life begins, ſo it uſually ends, with bewailing; as we ſee by daily Experience.

If any Man judges this Deſcription too tragical, I felicitate him upon having paſſed his Life with leſs Trouble and fewer Misfortunes. For my own part, I judge the Sketch not aggravated. The happy Days I have ſeen in the World, may ſoon be numbered. If others can reckon up a Series of happy Years, it would be Joy to me; for as we are all Fellow-Sufferers, we ought by no Means to envy one another our ſhort-lived Enjoyments. The Practice of thoſe Bigots ſhould never be followed, who deny themſelves no Gratifications, but allow none to their Neighbours.

From the Miſeries to which the preſent Life is ſubject, ariſes a moſt comfortable Demonſtration of a future State. If there was to be no Life after this, we might ſay, that "God had made Man "in his Anger," and render'd him, the moſt miſerable of all the Creatures. For, tho' Brutes are ſubject to Miſery and Death, yet they are free from Care and Anxiety; ſo that even the Underſtanding, allotted to Man, would then diſtinguiſh him in Miſery from Brutes; who are not encumbered about any thing more than the preſent; whilſt Men are attentive to paſt, to preſent, and to future Evils. But the glorious and juſt Expectation, of the Life to come, is capable of ſweetening all the Bitterneſs in this; provided we ſo mould our Thoughts, as to look upon earthly Miſeries as no Miſeries at all, in Compariſon of the future Joys we are to expect. And, certainly, the greater Sufferings we innocently undergo in this World, the more pleaſing Idea we may actually have, of the promiſed Felicities, in the Life eternal. To diminiſh the Miſeries of this Life, and prepare the Mind for a better, is the Aim of the Author; who wiſhes he had Abilities adequate to ſo glorious a Work.

PARIS, May 17.

THO' the Heads of the Clergy have for ſome Time paſt been conſulting with the King's Miniſters about ſplitting the Difference between them and the Government, they have got nothing by their Remonſtrances and Sollicitations, his Majeſty having plainly ſignified, that he will not in the leaſt recede from his Declaration of the 7th of Auguſt laſt.

LONDON, May 13.

An Extract of a Letter from Amſterdam, dated May 3.

"There has been much Talk, ſince the Peace, of the Endeavours which the Court of France is uſing, and the Efforts which it is making, to put its Marine into a reſpectable Condition. 'Tis true, that Court labours ſtrenouſly to accompliſh this End, and, indeed, with ſome Succeſs, but has yet done nothing near ſo much therein as has been publiſhed in moſt of the foreign News-Papers. Far from having eighty or a hundred Men of War actually in a Condition of being employ'd, we are aſſur'd, there are not in all the French Ports many more than Half that Number which are ready to put to Sea. 'Tis nevertheleſs true, that there are as many, and perhaps more, upon the Stocks, in the ſeveral Ports of the Kingdom, than will make up that Number; but the Superintendants in a great Meaſure content themſelves with beginning the Conſtruction of Ships, and leaving off after they have carried it on to a certain Point; but then, in ſuch Manner, as to be able to finiſh them when the Circumſtances of Affairs ſhall require it. In the mean time, many Hands are employ'd, and much Diligence is uſed, in preparing Maſts, Sails and Cordage, and conſiderable Quantities of all Sorts of Materials for building Ships, are collecting and laying up in the Arſenals and Magazines of France, inſomuch that in a few Years that Nation will be in a Condition of putting ſeveral powerful Squadrons to Sea, of having a Number of Men of War in Reſerve, with large Quantities of all Materials for building more. The French Court has appropriated an annual Fund for the Service of the Marine; the Surplus of which Fund, after having defray'd the Expence of building a ſufficient Number of Ships, and laying in a Quantity of Materials for building more, will accumulate, and be always ready to be employ'd in Time of War in the Maintenance of Sailors, and other extraordinary Expences."

May 18. From Poſnania, we have Advice, that on the 26th of April, N. S. a terrible Fire broke out at Znin, a Town within two Miles of that City, belonging to the Primate of Poland, which in about ſix Hours reduced it almoſt entirely to Aſhes; nothing but the Parochial Church, a Convent of Dominicans, and 26 Houſes, being left ſtanding.

As the Report of a new diſcovered Iſland has excited the Attention of the People with the Hopes of a new Settlement, we cannot omit giving the Public the following Account of the Meaſures taken for the more effectual Diſcovery of it.-----Commodore Rodney, who is ſoon going to Newfoundland, to take upon him the Government of that Place, is likewiſe commiſſioned to go in queſt of an Iſland, which, according to the Reports of a Maſter of a Ship, and ſome others, on Examination before the Lords of the Admiralty, lies about 50 Degrees North, and about 300 Leagues to the Weſtward of England. A Sloop attends him, in order to bring back an Account of what Diſcoveries he may make. As this Iſland lies out of the Tract of the Trade to America, whether North or South, it has for that Reaſon, it is ſuppoſed, been miſſed by Navigators to our Colonies, though it is marked in ſome of the Dutch Maps. If the Commodore diſcovers it, he is to take Poſſeſſion of it by the Name of Rodney's Iſland.

We have received the following melancholy Account from ſeveral of the poor Britiſh Captives, lately redeemed from Slavery in Barbary, ſome of whom came home in the Blandford Man of War, the 22d of laſt March, viz. That they ſailed, October 1745, out of the River Thames, in the Inſpector Privateer, Capt. Veale, of 22 Carriage Guns, beſides Swivels; and on the 4th of January, 1745-6, were wrecked in Tangier Bay, on the Coaſt of Barbary, where they loſt ninety-ſix of the Crew, and eighty-ſix getting on Shore alive, were immediately ſeiz'd and ſtript by the Moors; ſeventy-nine of them being carried to Priſon, were chained twenty together, and kept in that miſerable Condition for four Days and four Nights ſucceſſively, without any thing either to eat or drink, and lay upon the bare Stones; under which Diſtreſſes they were conſulting to draw Lots for one to be killed to ſubſiſt the reſt; but on a Remonſtrance from the Goaler, that they were near expiring, the People of the Town ſent them 8 Sheep, two of which they inſtantly devoured raw, and from that Time they were allowed Bread and Water. In which Condition, they remained four Months, and were then drove up the Country from Tangier, to Buſcoran, which is 200 Engliſh Miles, barefooted, like a Flock of Sheep, to the Emperor of Morocco, who ordered them to Slavery, the third Day after they came there, in building up, and pulling down, large Caſtle Walls, where they worked with very heavy Tools from Sun-riſing to Sun-ſetting, Sundays and all Days alike; their Allowance, for a great Part of their Slavery, being but Half a Blankeen a Day, which is but one Penny; and at the moſt only a whole Blankeen. In this Condition, they remained for upwards of four Years, when they were redeem'd by William Latton Eſq; his Majeſty's Ambaſſador to Muley Abdallah, Emperor of Morocco; and it is very ſurprizing, that ſo many of them ſurvived theſe great Fatigues, only eight of them dying in the Country, as they never had any Thing to lie on, but the Ground and Stones, and nothing to cover them but a Straw Mat on their Heads, and a Piece of a Blanket round their Bodies in the Day Time.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, May 21.

"The Inſpectors of the Army are actually reviewing the Troops in their reſpective Departments all over the Kingdom, and are ordered to make them exerciſe according to the Method lately introduced; which Exerciſe takes up but the Third of the Time required of the old Method, and is performed with ſurprizing Agility and Dexterity. The Commiſſaries appointed by this Crown and the Britiſh Court to ſettle ſuch Matters as could not be adjuſted by the Negociators at Aix-la-Chapelle, have not yet made any Progreſs in the Buſineſs: Some pretend they are ſtopped by a Diſpute about the Prizes made on both Sides. The Britiſh Court refers, in this Caſe, to the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, which mentions only the Prizes made after the Term ſtipulated for the Ceſſation of Hoſtilities; but our Court is for bringing into the Account all the Captures made before the Declaration of War between the two Crowns, as many French Ships were then taken by the Engliſh, under the Pretext that they had Spaniſh Treaſure on board, or were carrying Proviſions and Warlike Stores to the Port of Spain, &c.

that

May 21. They write from Stockholm, that the new King and his principal Miniſters hold frequent Conferences; to which the Ambaſſadors of France and Denmark are regularly invited; and it is farther ſaid, that they are in daily Expectation of a very large Remittance from the former of thoſe two Courts.

Our laſt Advices from Ratiſbon, inſinuate, as if a certain great Court in Germany laboured to perſuade that of Vienna, of its having no ſettled Intention to oppoſe the Election of the Arch Duke Joſeph; but that on the Contrary, upon certain Conditions, favourable to the Conſtitution of the Empire, ſhe is willing to give her Concurrence to that Meaſure, without any private Gratification of any Kind.

Our Correſpondent at Paris aſſures us, that there is not only a Squadron equipping at Toulon, but that ſome Troops are in Motion in the Southern Provinces of France, whence it is apprehended, that a new Embarkation will be ſpeedily made for Corſica.

ANNAPOLIS, July 31.

On Monday laſt Week, a Number of Men went out from Frederick Town, in Frederick County, in Search of ſome Robbers, who had ſtole ſome Things from Town the Day before, and were ſuppoſed to be in their neighbouring Woods; and in their Search found a large Bay Horſe, tied to a Buſh, who had juſt been fed with Oats, and was in good Order; and juſt by him, there lay three Saddles, and hard by, on a Buſh, hung a loaded Piſtol: The Horſe, Saddles and Piſtol, they took with them, but could not find the Men. As we have not heard much of late, of thoſe Robbers who infeſted the Neighbourhood of this City, about a Fortnight ago, we were in hopes that they had either turn'd honeſt, left off Buſineſs, or gone further off; which laſt now ſeems moſt probable, as the Deſcription of the Horſe taken in Frederick County, gives great Reaſon to think it is the ſame which was ſtole from this Place belonging to Mr. Raitt.

BOSTON, July 29.

A few Days ago arrived at Halifax a Ship with about 250 Palantines.

Thurſday laſt Capt. Dogget arrived here from Newcaſtle, who informs us, that in his Paſſage hither, he met with the Ship Mary, Arthur Perry, from N. York for London, off Plymouth, June 3. And the Snow Sally, James Gilbert of Philadelphia, from the Streights for London, June 6th, Diſtant from Scilly, 80 Leagues.

Halifax in Nova-Scotia, June 18. This Day Lieut. Pateſhall, with a Party of Men, march'd from the Parade to the Priſon, from whence they conducted three condemned Malefactors to the Place of Execution, where the Rev. Dr. Tutte met them, and after diſcourſing and praying with them, left them; immediately the Executioner mounted the Stage, and having made faſt the Halters of two, and throwing the third Halter over the Gallows, proceeded to pull their Caps over their Eyes, which he did to two of them, but going to the Third to tell him there was a Reprieve for him, he immediately fainted and fell backwards; proper Care being taken of him he recover'd, and was carry'd back to Priſon: The other two were turn'd off, and ſuffer'd the Pains of Death, agreeable to the Sentence paſs'd on them.

July 8. About 4 Days ago, upwards of 40 Iriſhmen (who had been employ'd as Labourers on George's Iſland, and lately diſcharged) deſerted us, and went over to the Indian Enemy. They are all Roman Catholicks, as it appears, concerted their Scheme ſome Time ago, intending to have made their Eſcape from the Iſland, had they not been diſcharged.---One of the principal of them, whoſe Name is Kyan, was taken, and is now in Irons: We hear the Remainder of thoſe that were diſcharged, are to be employed to Picket in the Town of Dartmouth, which is at preſent almoſt wholly deſerted, except by the Soldiery.---On the 29th of June laſt ſail'd for England, the Ship Cornwallis, Capt. Ball, who was hir'd an Expreſs by the Government.

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 5.

Tueſday laſt one James Bill, alias Bradford, a Narraganſet Man, was apprehended near Second River in N. Jerſey, and committed to our Jail, as one of thoſe concerned with Jonathan Woodman, mentioned in our laſt, in counterfeiting the Twenty Shilling Bills of Credit of this Province: The other called Dr. Dunſten, is not yet taken. 'Tis ſaid, this Bill had been taken up and committed to Jail at Hackinſack a few Years ago, for uttering counterfeit Jerſey Bills, from whence he made his Eſcape; but 'tis hoped he will now meet with the Reward of his Ingenuity. Their Trials we hear, are put off till the next Term.

Capt. Fowle, who arrived here laſt Week from Coracoa, touch'd at Bermuda in his Way hither, and informs us, that whilſt he was there, Capt. Appleton arrived there in a Sloop from Turks-Iſland, and gave an Account, that a Spaniſh Privateer or Pirate from St. Domingo, had lately taken there the following Engliſh Veſſels, viz. Capt. Ja. Dickinſon, Capt. R. Dickinſon, and Capt. Chaſe, all Sloops from Bermuda; Capt. Shortes, in a Sloop from N. Carolina; Capt. Tucker in a Brig from Barbados, bound for N. London, and Capt. Appleton from Antigua for Connecticut; which laſt ranſom'd his Sloop for 500 Pieces of Eight. The Spaniards at firſt were in a Schooner, which they afterwards turn'd into a Sloop, and then made another Privateer of one of the Bermuda Sloops they took, to go in Concert with them: They endeavour'd to perſuade thoſe they took to go along, and enter'd all that would liſt, Whites or Blacks, of which laſt there were a good Number.

Cuſtom-Houſe, New-York, Inward Entries.

¶ ABEL PARKE.

NOtice is hereby given to all perſons that intend to convey themſelves, goods, wares or merchandize, from Philadelphia to New-York, or from New-York to Philadelphia: That there will be a ſtage-boat, well fitted, and kept by Patrick Cowan, living in Burlington, that will attend every Tueſday in every week, at the Crooked Billet Wharff, in Philadelphia, for the ſame buſineſs, and will proceed the ſame day up to Burlington, wind and weather permitting. And on Wedneſday morning a ſtage waggon, with a good arning, kept by Fretwell Wright, at the Blue Anchor, in Burlington, and John Predmore, at Cramberry, and James Wilſon, at Amboy Ferry; will proceed to Obadiah Ayrs's, Inn-keeper at Amboy Ferry; where good entertainment for man and horſe is, and will be kept. And on Thurſday a ſtage paſſage-boat, with a fine commodious cabbin, fitted with a tea-table, and ſundry other conveniencies, kept by Matthias Iſelſtine, will be ready to receive the paſſengers or goods, and proceed directly to New-York, and give her attendance at Whitehall Battery. If Paſſengers are ready at the places on ſtage days, 'tis believ'd they will go ſooner from Philadelphia to New-York, by 24 or 30 hours, than by any other way that has been made uſe of by ſtage, the boat from Philadelphia to Burlington ſeldom being above four hours on her paſſage, and often but two or three hours. All perſons on or near the road, that have buſineſs, may have it done with due care and attendance. The price of paſſengers or goods, that ſhall come to Burlington, will be no more per mile than from Bordentown. On Sundays or Mondays in any week, paſſengers trading up and down the river, or any other manner, whoſe waggon hire ſhall amount to Sixteen Shillings, or upwards, ſhall, upon the firſt notice, have a waggon, and be tranſported to the ſtage boat, which will be ready to receive them at the landing, and is the moſt handy and convenient of any thereabouts, there being a good wharff to ſtep into the boat. The boat, for the firſt time, will begin to attend at the Crooked Billet on Tueſday, the 13th day of Auguſt, 1751, and the waggon will proceed the day following. Further, if the ice, or any thing elſe, ſhould at any time prevent the paſſage boat from going from Burlington to Philadelphia, the ſtage waggon will, if requir'd, proceed from Burlington to Cooper's Ferry. FRETWELL WRIGHT, JOHN PREDMORE, JAMES WILSON, PATRICK COWAN.

To the RAMBLER.

SIR,

THOUGH, in the Diſſertations which you have given us on Marriage, very juſt Cautions are laid down againſt the common Cauſes of Miſcarriage; and the Neceſſity of having in that important Choice, the firſt Regard to Virtue, is carefully inculcated: Yet I cannot think the Subject ſo much exhauſted, but that a little Reflection would preſent to the Mind many Queſtions, in the Diſcuſſion of which great Numbers are intereſted, and many Precepts which deſerve to be more particularly and forcibly inforced.

You ſeem, like moſt of the Writers that have gone before, to have admitted as an inconteſted Principle, That Marriage is generally unhappy. But I know not whether it becomes a Man who profeſſes to think for himſelf, and forms his Opinions from his own Obſervation, not willing to follow the Croud implicitly, and receive Maxims without ſubmitting them to new Examination; eſpecially when they comprehend ſo great a Complication, and include ſuch Variety of Circumſtances. As I have an equal Right with others to give my Opinion of the Objects about me, and a better Title to determine concerning that State which I have tried, than many who talk of it without Experience; I am unwilling to be reſtrained by mere Authority from advancing what, I believe, an accurate View of the World will confirm, that Marriage is not commonly unhappy, otherwiſe than as Beings are unhappy; and that moſt of thoſe who complain of connubial Miſeries, have as much Satisfaction as their Nature would have admitted, or their Conduct procured, in any other Condition.

It is indeed common to hear both Sexes repine at their Condition, to regret the Happineſs of their earlier Years, blame the Folly and Raſhneſs of their own Choice, and warn thoſe whom they ſee coming into the World againſt the ſame Precipitance and Infatuation. But it is to be remembered, that the Days which they ſo much wiſh to call back, are the Days not only of Celibacy, but of Youth; the Days of Novelty and Improvement, of Ardour and of Hope, of Health and Vigour of Body, of Gaiety and Lightneſs of Heart. It is not eaſy to unite Life with any Circumſtances in which Youth will not be delightful; and I am afraid, that, whether married or unmarried, we ſhall find the Veſture of terreſtrial Exiſtence more burdenſome and cumbrous the longer it is worn.

Thoſe both cenſure themſelves for the Indiſcretion of their Choice, and make a ſufficient Proof that they have choſen ill; ſince we ſee the Diſcontent at every other Part of Life which we cannot change. Converſe with almoſt any Man grown old in a Profeſſion, and you will find him regreting, that he did not enter into ſome Way of Life, to which he too late finds his Genius better adapted, or in which he diſcovers that Wealth and Honour are more eaſily attainable. The Merchant, ſays Horace, envies the Soldier; and the Soldier mounts the Felicity of the Merchant: The Lawyer, when the Clamour harraſs him, calls out for the Quiet of the Country-man; and the Country-man, when Buſineſs calls him to Town, exclaims that there is no Happineſs but in public Life. Every Man recounts the Miſeries of his own Station; and always thinks thoſe of any other eaſy, becauſe he has not felt them. Thus the married praiſe the Eaſe and Freedom of a ſingle Life, and the ſingle fly to Marriage from the Wearineſs of Solitude. From all our Obſervations we may collect with Certainty, that Miſery is the Lot of Man; but cannot diſcover in what particular State it will find moſt Alleviations; or whether all external Appendages are not, as we uſe them well or ill, the Cauſes either of Pain or Pleaſure.

Whoever feels great Pain, naturally hopes for Eaſe from Change of Poſture; he changes it, and finds himſelf equally tormented. Remedies of the ſame kind are the Expedients by which we endeavour to obviate or elude thoſe Uneaſineſſes to which Mortality will always be ſubject. It is however not likely that the married State is more frequently miſerable; ſince we ſee ſuch Numbers, whom the Death of their Partners has ſet free from it, entering it again.

Wives and Huſbands are, indeed, inceſſantly complaining of each other, and there would be reaſon for imagining that in almoſt every Pair, did we not know how readily ſome Minds burſt out into Reproaches and Lamentations, and how naturally every Animal relieves his Pain upon thoſe who happen to be near, without any Examination of its Cauſe. We are always willing to fancy Felicity within a little of Happineſs; and when with repeated Efforts we cannot reach it, perſuade ourſelves that it is intercepted only by an ill-paired Mate; ſince if we could find any other Obſtacle, it would be our own Fault that it was not removed.

Anatomiſts have often remarked, that though our Diſeaſes are frequently numerous and ſevere; yet when we enquire into the Conſtruction of the Body, the Tenderneſs of ſome Parts, the Minuteneſs of others, and the immenſe Multiplicity of animal Functions that muſt conſpire to the healthful and vigorous Exerciſe of all our Powers; there appears Reaſon to wonder, rather that we are preſerved ſo long, than that we periſh ſo ſoon; and that our Frame ſubſiſts for a ſingle Day or Hour without Diſorder, rather than that it ſhould be broken or obſtructed by Violence of Accidents, or Length of Time.

The ſame Reflection ariſes in my Mind, when I obſerve the Manner in which Marriage is generally contracted. When I ſee Avaricious and Crafty taking Companions to their Tables, and their Beds, without any Enquiry, but after Farms and Money; or Giddy and thoughtleſs uniting for Life to thoſe whom they have ſeen by the Light of Tapers at a Ball; when Parents make Contracts for their Children, without enquiring after their Conſent; when ſome marry for Heirs to diſapoint their Brothers, and others throw themſelves into the Arms of thoſe whom they do not love, becauſe they have found themſelves rejected where they were more deſirous to pleaſe; when ſome marry becauſe their Servants perſuade them, ſome becauſe their own Money, ſome becauſe their Houſes are peſtered with Company, ſome becauſe they would live like other People, and ſome only becauſe they are ſick of themſelves: I am not ſo much inclined to wonder that Marriage is ſometimes unhappy, as that it appears generally ſo little ſtocked with Calamity; and cannot but conclude, that Society has ſomething in itſelf eminently agreeable to human Nature, when we conſider with what Pleaſures ſo great, that even the ill Choice of a Companion can hardly overbalance them.

By the ancient Cuſtom of the Muſcovites, the Men and Women never ſaw each other till they were united beyond the Power of parting. It may be ſuſpected, that, by this Method, many unſuitable Matches were produced, and many Tempers aſſociated that were very little qualified to give Pleaſure to each other. Yet, perhaps among a People ſo little delicate, where the Paucity of Objects and the Uniformity of Life, gave no Opportunity for Imagination to interpoſe its Objections, there was not ſo much Danger of capricious Diſlike; and while they felt neither Cold nor Hunger, they might live quietly together, without any Thought of the Defects of one another.

Amongſt us, whom Knowledge has made nice, and Affluence wanton, there are indeed more Cautions requiſite to ſecure Tranquility; and yet if we obſerve the Manner in which thoſe converſe who have ſingled out each other for Marriage, we ſhall perhaps think that the Ruſſians loſt little by their Reſtraint. For the whole Endeavour of both Parties, during the Time of Courtſhip, is, to hinder themſelves from being known, and to diſguiſe their natural Temper and real Deſires, in hypocritical Imitation, ſtudied Compliance, and continued Affectation. From the Time that their Love is avowed, neither ſees the other but in a Maſk; and the Cheat is managed often on both Sides with ſo much Art, and diſcovered afterwards with ſo much Abruptneſs, that each has Reaſon to think, there has been ſome Tranſformation on the Wedding Night; and that by a ſtrange Impoſture, one has been courted, and another married.

I deſire you therefore, Mr. RAMBLER, to queſtion all who ſhall hereafter come to you with matrimonial Complaints, concerning their Behaviour in the Time of Courtſhip; and inform them, that they are neither to wonder nor repine, that a Contract begun with Fraud, has ended in Diſappointment.

I am, &c.

Let cumbrous Wealth increaſe at Will,
There's always ſomewhat wanting ſtill.

AS the Love of Money has been in all Ages one of the Paſſions that have given great Diſturbance to the Tranquility of the World, there is no Topic more copiouſly treated by the antient Moraliſts, than the Folly of devoting the Heart to the Accumulation of Riches; ſince they can contribute very little to the Happineſs of human Life. Thoſe who are acquainted with theſe Authors, need not be told how Riches incite Pity, Contempt or Reproach, whenever they are mentioned; with what Numbers of Examples the Danger of large Poſſeſſions is illuſtrated; and how all the Powers of Reaſon and Eloquence have been exhauſted in a fruitleſs Endeavour to eradicate a Deſire, which ſeems to have intrenched itſelf too ſtrongly in the Mind to be driven out by Argument or Ridicule; and which, perhaps, had not loſt its Power, even over thoſe who declaimed moſt vehemently againſt it; but would have broken out in the Poet or the Sage, if it had been excited by Opportunity, and invigorated by the Approximation of its proper Object.

Their Arguments have been indeed ſo unſucceſsful, that I know not whether it can be ſhown, that by all the Wit and Reaſon which this favourite Cauſe has called forth, a ſingle Convert was ever made; that even one Man has refuſed to be rich, when to be rich was in his Power, from the Conviction of the greater Happineſs of a narrow Fortune; or diſburthened himſelf of Wealth, when he had tried its Inquietudes, merely to enjoy the Peace, and Leiſure, and Security, of a mean and unenvied State.

It is true, indeed, that many have neglected Opportunities of raiſing themſelves to Honours and to Wealth, and rejected the kindeſt Offers of Fortune; but however their Moderation may be boaſted by themſelves, or admired by ſuch as only view them at a Diſtance, it will be perhaps ſeldom found, that they value Riches leſs, but that they dread Labour, or Danger, more than others. They are unable to rouſe themſelves to Action, to ſtrain in the Race of Competition, or to ſtand the Shock of Conteſt; but though they therefore decline the Evil of climbing, they nevertheleſs wiſh themſelves aloft, and would willingly enjoy what they dare not ſeize.

Others have retired from high Stations, and voluntarily condemned themſelves to Privacy and Obſcurity. But even theſe will not afford many Occaſions of Triumph to the Philoſopher: For they have commonly quitted that only which they thought themſelves unable to hold, and prevented Diſgrace by Reſignation; or they have been induced to try new Meaſures by general Inconſtancy, which always dreamed of Happineſs in Novelty; or by a gloomy Diſpoſition, which was diſguſted in the ſame Degree with every State, wiſhed every Scene of Life to change as ſoon as it was beheld; and ſuch Men found high and low Stations equally unable to ſatisfy the Cravings of a diſtempered Mind, and were unable to ſhelter themſelves in the cloſeſt Retreat from Diſappointment, Solicitude, and Miſery.

Yet though theſe Admonitions have been thus neglected by thoſe who either enjoyed Riches, or were able to procure them, it is not raſhly to be determined that they are altogether without Uſe: For ſince far the greateſt part of Mankind muſt be confined to Conditions comparatively mean, and placed in Situations from which they naturally look up with Envy to the Eminences before them, thoſe Writers cannot be thought ill employed that have adminiſtered Remedies to Diſcontent almoſt univerſal, by ſhewing, that what we cannot reach, may very well be forborn; that the Inequality of Diſtribution at which we murmur, is for the moſt part leſs than it ſeems; and that the Greatneſs which we admire at a Diſtance, has much fewer Advantages, and much leſs Splendor, when we are ſuffered to approach it.

It is the Buſineſs of Moraliſts, to detect the Frauds of Fortune, and to ſhew that ſhe impoſes upon the careleſs Eye, by a quick Succeſſion of Shadows, which will ſhrink to nothing in the Gripe; that ſhe diſguiſes Life in extrinſic Ornaments, which can be of uſe only for Show, and are laid aſide in the Hours of Solitude, and of Pleaſure; and that when Greatneſs either aſpires to Happineſs or to Wiſdom, it ſhakes off, as vain or cumbrous, the chief Part of thoſe Diſtinctions which are of uſe to dazzle the Gazer, and awe the Supplicant.

It may be remarked, that they whoſe Condition has not afforded them the Light of moral or religious Inſtruction, and who collect all their Ideas by their own Eyes, and digeſt them by their own Underſtandings, ſeem to conſider thoſe who are placed in Ranks of remote Superiority, as almoſt another and higher Species of Beings; and as they themſelves have known little other Miſery, than the Conſequences of Want, are with Difficulty perſuaded, that where there is Wealth there can be Sorrow; or that thoſe who glitter in Dignity, and glide along in Affluence, can be acquainted with Pains and Cares, like thoſe which lie heavy upon the reſt of Mankind.

This Prejudice is indeed confined to the loweſt Meanneſs, and the darkeſt Ignorance: But it is ſo confined only, becauſe others have been ſhewed its Folly, and its Falſhood; becauſe it has been oppoſed in its Progreſs by Hiſtory and Philoſophy, and hindered from ſpreading its Infection by powerful Preſervatives.

The Doctrine of the Contempt of Wealth, though it has not been wholly able to extinguiſh Avarice or Ambition, has certainly made them leſs importunate and overbearing: And though it has not wholly ſuppreſſed that Reluctance with which a Man paſſes his Life in a State of Inferiority, it muſt, at leaſt, have made the lower Conditions leſs grating and wearifome; and had conſequently contributed to the general Security of Life, by hindering a great Part of that Fraud and Violence, Rapine and Circumvention, which muſt have been produced by an unbounded Eagerneſs of Wealth, ariſing from an unſhaken Conviction, that to be rich is to be happy.

Whoever finds himſelf incited, by ſome violent Impulſe of Paſſion, to purſue Riches as the chief End of Life, muſt ſurely be ſufficiently alarmed by the ſucceſſive Admonition of thoſe whoſe Experience and Sagacity have recommended them as the Guides of Mankind, to ſtop, and conſider whether he is about to engage in an Undertaking that will reward his Toil; and to examine before he ruſhes to Wealth, through Right and Wrong, what it will confer when he has acquired it: And this Examination will ſeldom fail to repreſs his Ardour, and retard his Violence.

Wealth is nothing in itſelf. It is not uſeful but when it departs from us; and its Value is found only in that which it can purchaſe; which, if we ſuppoſe it put to its beſt Uſe by thoſe that poſſeſs it, ſeems not much to deſerve the Deſire or Envy of a wiſe Man. It is certain, that, with regard to corporal Enjoyment, Money can neither open new Avenues to Pleaſure, nor block up the Paſſages of Anguiſh. Diſeaſe and Infirmity ſtill continue to torture and enfeeble, perhaps exaſperated by Luxury, or promoted by Softneſs. With reſpect to the Mind, it has rarely been obſerved, that Wealth contributes much to quicken the Diſcernment, enlarge the Capacity, or elevate the Imagination; but may, by hiring Flattery, or laying Diligence aſleep, confirm Error, and harden Stupidity.

Wealth cannot confer Greatneſs; for nothing can make that great, which the Decree of Nature has ordained to be little. The Bramble may be placed in a Hot-bed, but can never become an Oak. Even Royalty itſelf, is not able to give that Dignity, which it happens not to find; but oppreſſes little Minds, thought it may elevate the great. The World has been governed in the Name of Kings, whoſe Exiſtence has ſcarcely been perceived by any real Effects beyond their own Palaces.

When therefore the Deſire of Wealth takes hold of the Mind, let us look round, and ſee how it operates upon thoſe whoſe Induſtry or Fortune has obtained it. When we find them oppreſſed with their own Abundance, luxurious without Pleaſure, idle without Eaſe, impatient and querulous in themſelves, and deſpiſed or hated by the reſt of Mankind, we ſhall ſoon be convinced, that, if the real Wants of this Condition are ſatisfied, there remains little to be ſought with Solicitude, or deſired with Ardour.

LONDON.

May 2. A few Days ſince an eminent Tradeſman of this City, under the Misfortune of miſſing his Wife, had conceived every poſſible Revenge, againſt a certain Perſon whom he ſuſpected of taking her off, but was prudently adviſed to be cautious in his Proceedings, and for the greater Certainty to apply for Information to an eminently ſkilful Doctor within a Mile of Ludgate. The learned Doctor, after ſome Pauſes and Heſitations, aſſured him he ſhould the next Day meet a Friend, who would unravel the whole Myſtery to him; and his Credulity was not diſpleaſed, when in Converſation he was accordingly informed that St. Albans was the favourite Retirement of the Lady: For which Place, with a Friend, he immediately ſet out in a Poſt Chaiſe, and agreeable to the Prediction, found the loſt Sheep. But how great the Aſtoniſhment, when, inſtead of the ſuſpected Rival, ſhe was caught in the Arms of his Partner ſuppoſed to be on a Journey to a contrary Part of the Kingdom.

May 18. By a private Letter from Rotterdam, we are told, that the Dutch Engineers, in their Plan for draining the Lake of Haerlem, propoſed to employ 150 Mills for three Years, and had computed the Expence at a Million and a Half of Florins, but that a German, who had been long employed in the Mines of Hungary and Hartz, had propoſed to drain it with 50 Machines, in 15 Months, at a far leſs Expence; and that he has been ordered to erect one of thoſe Machines, which, if it ſhall be found to execute what he has aſſerted, his Propoſal will be immediately accepted.

Newcaſtle, May 25. On Monday the 13th Inſt. was celebrated at Wentworth Houſe, in a very magnificent Manner, the Birth Day of the Marquis of Rockingham, where there was the moſt numerous Appearance of Gentlemen, &c. ever ſeen on the like Occaſion.

There were provided for this Entertainment, four large Oxen; the Weight of one 120 Stone (he had 26 Stone and 6 Pound of Tallow in him) another 108 Stone, two more about 70 Stone each; 10 large Sheep; 13 Lambs; 10 Calves; 100 Dozen of Pigeons; 46 Hams. Theſe were ſerv'd up in the following Manner, at 55 Tables in 23 Rooms, 132 Diſhes of Beef, 92 Pies, 60 Diſhes of roaſt Mutton, 46 Hams, 52 Quarters of Lamb, 67 Diſhes of Roaſt Veal, 103 hot and cold Diſhes of Fiſh, 50 Diſhes of Chickens, 106 Diſhes of Tarts and Cheeſe Cakes. One Hundred and fifty Buſhels of Wheat Meal was uſed for Bread, Pies, &c. Liquors drank that Day were three Hogſheads of Small Beer, 13 Hogſheads of Ale, 20 Hogſheads of ſtrong Beer, 8 Hogſheads of Punch, and 4 Hogſheads of Port Wine; beſides 8 Hogſheads of ſtrong Beer, drank the the Day following. There were about 10,000 Guests in the whole; 3000 of which, or upwards, were entertained in the House: And after they had dined, the Victuals were carried out into the Booths to the Populace, who had strong Beer and Ale as much as they pleased. The whole was conducted with as much Regularity as could be expected where there was so great a Concourse of People. The strong Beer was most of it brew'd in the Year 1730. Amongst many other Healths were drank the following, viz. The King, the Prince of Wales, the Princess Dowager of Wales, the Duke, and the rest of the Royal Family, the Church of England, as by Law established, Prosperity to the County of York, and the Trade thereof. The Marquis passed thro' every Room, and paid his Respects to the Company, and his Health was followed with a loud Huzza!

London, May 18. We hear that a Bill will be brought into Parliament, for permitting foreign Linnen Yarn to be imported into this Kingdom, which, if it passes, will enable us to sell Stripes and Checks as reasonable as our Neighbours.

Dublin, May 15. Some private Letters from England, inform us, that the Affair of the Union between Great-Britain and Ireland is now become a Subject of serious Consideration, that the Schemes drawn up for that Purpose, will be laid before the Parliaments of both Kingdoms for their Opinions thereon, next Winter.

Lately died at Donore, in the County of Westmeath, Patrick Sampson, in the 125th Year of his Age. He never was known to be a Week sick all the Time, and retained his Memory and Understanding to the last. He was Gardiner to Donore for eight Generations past.

Kingston, in Jamaica, July 6.

We hear from the North Side, that an unhappy Affair has happened to Capt. Nathaniel Skelden, viz. He intending to remove his Goods from a Store which he kept at Montego-Bay, to a Store at Dry Harbour, he put his Goods on board a Sloop, to the Value, as believed, of five or six Thousand Pounds; but the Sloop standing farther out to Sea than usual, his People rose, headed, as is said, by a Portuguese, and after wounding Capt. Skelden and his Clerk in several Places, set them on Shore, and immediately made off to Sea.

July 13. By Capt. James Pollock, of the Sloop Susannah, from St. Thomas, we are informed, that in his Passage he was taken by a Pettiauger, and a Spanish Sloop, belonging to Porto-Rico, who kept him Twenty-four Hours in Custody, and after plundering him of every Thing he had on board, sent him away without the least Necessaries of Life: He arrived here on Thursday the 4th Instant. The said Pollock says, that he was assured by some Irish Sailors that were on board the Spaniards, that they carried in fourteen or fifteen Sail of English Vessels.

Halifax, in Nova-Scotia, July 29. Since our last we have had a Snow from Rotterdam, with between 2 and 300 Settlers, and a Ship from England, with 100 Recruits for Col. Warburton's Regiment.---- Last Week we had some pleasing Accounts, that the French had ordered all their Troops to hold in Readiness to leave the Province.----That they informed the Indians there was a profound Peace between the two Crowns, and that they were marching to their respective Quarters; and more, that six of the St. John's Indians had been into Chignecto Fort, to treat of Peace, and had been there some Days when Capt. Huston, who brings the Account, came from thence.-----This Morning arrived a Ship from Amsterdam, with Dutch Settlers.-----

WILLIAMSBURGH, July 18.

Letters by the Dutchess of Queensbury, from London, advise, That the honourable Robert Dunwiddie, Esq; is appointed Lieutenant Governor of this Colony, and is preparing to set out for his Government.

ANNAPOLIS, August 14.

Last Friday was brought to Town, one John Connor, a Convict Servant belonging to a Gentleman at Elk Ridge, who was carried before a Magistrate, where he made a free and full Confession, that he, and one Thomas Bevan, were the Persons who made the Attempt to rob Mr. Cole, in the Night of the 2d of July last, that Bevan went into Mr. Cole's Bed-chamber and bound him, and he the said Connor tarried below to keep Watch, and when Mr. Cole's Man fired at him, return'd the Fire which gave the Alarm, on which Bevan jump'd out of the Window, and they both made off together, and continued some Time lurking about in the Pines, robbing sundry People: After which they made away towards Manocosy, where the Country was soon alarm'd, and the Woods very diligently search'd, and they narrowly escaped being taken; they finding that the People thereabouts were so industrious in searching after them, that it was impossible to get off that Way, Connor return'd back to his Master, and was brought to Town, and made the above Confession, on which he was committed to Jail. And Bevan, not knowing his Companion had impeach'd him, coming to Town on Saturday Night, in Hopes of being carried away by Water, went arm'd to his Master, and telling him he would not have him lose by him, but should be glad to be sold out of the Country, was prevail'd on to be secreted in a Cellar, where he was surpriz'd and taken on Sunday Morning, by several People who went in with loaded Pistols, and he is now in our Jail, strongly iron'd and chain'd to the Floor.

We are inform'd that the two Men, who were apprehended in New-England, and brought to St. Mary's County in this Province, to be tried for the Murder of the Master and Mate of a Vessel, which they had confess'd, have both broke Jail, and are not as yet retaken.

BOSTON, August 12.

Last Tuesday came to Town, ten Persons, Men, Women and Children, who were taken by the Indians at the Eastward about 11 Months ago, and by them carried into Captivity, and sold as Servants or Slaves to the French in Canada, under whose Authority they suffered great Hardships, and were employed in the meanest and most barbarous Business:----From Canada, by Virtue of the Application made by Capt. Stevens, for their Redemption, in Behalf of this Government, they were last Spring sent to Crown-Point Fort, where they have been kept by the French, till the Sums demanded for their Ransom should be paid, which has accordingly been done, and the poor People thereupon released, and sent from Crown-Point to Albany, from whence they travelled hither.

We learn from Halifax, that Capt. Mauger, of that Place, Merchant, and Mr. Prescott, late of this Town, are erecting large Distilling Works there, which, when finished, are like to deprive us of the best Branch of our Trade to that Province, as they are more conveniently situated for importing Melasses, both from--------and the West-Indies, than any other British Colony.

NEW-YORK, August 19.

Yesterday arrived here the Snow New-York, Capt. Gifford, in about 8 Weeks from Bristol: He parted with Capt. Machet of this Port five Weeks ago, bound from London for Nova-Scotia; and heard that the Captains Ryan, Perry and Troup, from this Place, were safe arriv'd at London; also that the Snow Irene, Capt. Garrison, lay in the Downes waiting for a Wind; and that Capt. Deane was ready to sail from London.

Extract of a Letter from Halifax, dated July 20.

---Yesterday arrived here a Ship from London with 100 Soldiers; and we daily expect 7 or 800 more, together with two Men of War, and some Hundreds of Settlers besides.---This Town and Suburbs is near four Miles long; and Lots that are fit for Business, not to be had but at a dear Rate:---In all Appearance this bids fair for the Capital of America in a few Years. There are about 200 Sail of Vessels belonging to this Port, and daily increasing, on Account of the great Encouragement in the Fishery, which goes on with great Success.---
